Water Well Launched in Honor of Pastor Michael & Katie Gossett

2024 was off to a good start for the rural residents of Wakinoni-Buleega LC1 village, Nakaseke district, Uganda. This is because of a new water well donated by Retired Judge Sam Griffith in honor of Pastor Michael Gossett of Green Acres Baptist Church in Tyler, Texas. The water well was completed and handed over to the villagers in late December 2023 and it is providing clean water to over 2,000 individuals. Through water wells like this one, EATBETA can partner with rural church pastors to evangelize their communities.

About Pastor Michael Gossett

Pastor Michael Gossett grew up in Rex, Georgia, and married his high school sweetheart, Katie. Michael followed his dream of becoming a Firefighter/EMT and served at the Hall County Fire Services for five years. After five years as a firefighter, the Lord called him into vocational ministry. Michael received a bachelor's degree from Liberty University, he served in various churches in a variety of ministries including Student Ministry, Young Adult Ministry, Associate Pastor, and Campus Pastor. While serving in these different ministries, he received a Master of Divinity degree from Liberty in 2015. Michael accepted a call to become Teaching Pastor of Green Acres Baptist Church in June of 2019. On April 28, 2020, while serving at GABC, he received a Doctor of Ministry degree from Liberty Theological Seminary with an emphasis on Discipleship. Michael officially became Lead Pastor of Green Acres on Sunday, Aug 29, 2021 and still currently serves in that role.

EATBETA Training Center Almost Ready for Summer 2024 Mission

In 2020, EATBETA acquired a 2-acre piece of land at Bugambakimu village in Nakaseke district, and in 2021, construction of the training center structure began. The construction is now being finalized and during the summer mission of 2023 the building was partially used for conducting training sessions – providing space for up to 60 rural farmers seated inside, and up to 70 seated outside. We believe by the summer mission of 2024 the training center will be able to accommodate much larger audiences.

Besides functioning as EATBETA-Uganda’s headquarters, the structure, along with its surrounding grounds, will serve as a multipurpose training center for rural farmers where modern, efficient farming methods are demonstrated. Training Ugandan rural farmers is crucial in transforming rural livelihoods and alleviating rural poverty.

In the near future, in efforts to reach more rural farmers with farming-focused training and evangelism, we plan to establish a media center within the new building that would broadcast programs to a larger area of Nakaseke district, which has a population of 234,600 according to the 2020 population projection data.
